

PomidorCart consulting sessions and workshops are available to customers who are considering evolving and optimising their IT environments.

PomidorCart offers one-on-one consulting sessions between PomidorCart technical and business (or business partner) personnel and key members of your team.

Each consulting session is designed to identify your business priorities and show how our products and services can support them. The sessions are not presentations. They are interactive discussions tailored to your particular situation. They resolve information technology issues and discuss key business issues/requirements to assist with your short and long-term planning.

The consulting sessions are available in select cities around the world. Contact us for details .

Quite often, one session leads to another and these planning and problem solving sessions are tailored to address your key business and IT requirements. Although structured in design, these workshops are conducted in an informal atmosphere and result in the creation of a suggested implementation plan that is reviewed and approved by the customer. Consulting sessions needs to be booked in advance and will be held at our designated offices. Contact your PomidorCart account representative for availability.
